TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN :

“During the Ground Handling International conference in Johannesburg in June 2016, Maurizio Anichini and Brenda Aremo-Anichini of Twiga Aero Ltd. provided insightful information to a gathering of more than 200 aviation professionals. With her powerful speech on the conference theme of Transformational Leadership, Brenda set the challenging tone of the conference.

Throughout the conference, both Brenda and Maurizio demonstrated deep knowledge of the industry covering topics from regulations to contracts, from operational standards to training and competence building. The post-conference Aviation Ground Operations Management (AGOM) training they both provided was challenging and intense. As the Accountable Executive of AHS I was motivated to take this course, because of the topics to be covered and the prospected exchange of experiences with various bodies in the Industry, both from my own station as well as other African stations.

This could pave the way to share good practices and learn from each other on mutual challenges that we face on the Continent with different bodies in the Industry.

That promise was surely kept.

The 3-day course provided knowledge on the board range of subjects that make up the industry, with a focus on ground operations. Even for a seasoned professional with decades of industry experience, the course highlighted key elements in the short time, which would otherwise take years to uncover.

A dynamic couple of industry professionals with decades of experience to their credit, Brenda and Maurizio challenged course participants with stimulating subjects, scenarios and debates, which made it feel as if the course took place in a live airport environment.”

Yours faithfully,
